

Don't miss your opportunity to learn about this new cost-share opportunity for Ontario Farmers

Upcoming virtual and in-person information sessions

The Ontario Soil and Crop Improvement Association (OSCIA) is excited to be delivering the new On-Farm Climate Action Fund (OFCAF) to Ontario farmers. Program information will be made available on July 11, 2022, through OSCIA's website at www.ontariosoilcrop.org, including an online program guide that outlines program eligibility and how and when to apply!

Under OFCAF, farmers can apply for cost-share to support best management practices (BMPs) that reduce greenhouse gas (GHG) emissions and increase carbon sequestration, investing in farms' soil health to improve long-term productivity, profitability, and sustainability. Specific BMPs that will be supported under the program include in-field nitrogen management, cover cropping practices, and establishing or expanding rotational grazing systems.

Cost-share funding is available at 65% of approved project costs. Eligible costs may can be incurred starting from February 15, 2022, for implementation of new practices such as:

- Trying nitrogen stabilizers or in-field biological inoculants for the first time
- Leaving a cover crop over winter where it has always been terminated in the fall
- Setting up permanent perimeter and cross-fencing, to establish new rotational grazing systems

The online program guide will be released July 11th, 2022, but farmers who are interested in learning more about the program are encouraged to participate in an upcoming Farmer Information Session. Sessions will be delivered over the upcoming weeks both virtually and in-person across the province.
